WHW Receives Three-Year Accreditation from CARF International

Santa Ana, California (July 3, 2012) –WHW (Women Helping Women/Men2Work) is pleased to announce that it has received a three-year CARF accreditation for its Santa Ana facility in the area of Community Employment Services.

CARF, the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities, is an independent, nonprofit accreditor of health and human services. CARF objectives are to elevate the standards of care for the populations served. A voluntary program, CARF accreditation seeks conformance with a commonly held higher standard, with its roots in consumer-centered care, and a focus on measured outcomes.

This achievement represents the highest level of accreditation that can be awarded to an organization and shows that WHW has met internationally recognized standards for efficiency, fiscal health and service delivery, which ultimately means better results and greater satisfaction for the people we serve. According to Brian Boon, Ph.D., CARF President, “Services, personnel, and documentation clearly indicate an established pattern of practice excellence.”

“WHW (Women Helping Women/Men2Work) is honored to receive the distinction of CARF accreditation. This accreditation exemplifies WHW’s commitment to continuous improvement and our focus on providing the highest quality employment services to clients throughout Orange County. CARF’s quality standard of “Aspire to Excellence” is the basis of WHW’s service delivery model, and we are thrilled to be recognized by this prestigious accreditation authority, said WHW’s Executive Director, Janie Wolicki.
